CENTER FOR MEDICAL ETHICS & HEALTH POLICY

Be reflective and mindful of issues related to diversity, equity, and inclusion in both interactions with one another and in Center decision-making.

Interact with everyone in the Center and be transparent with updates and decisions.

Set and state your own intentions, ask others for their intentions, and assume others are acting with good intentions.

Don’t triangulate; rather, bring your concerns directly to someone who can make a difference. Redirect triangulation when you see others do it.

Support each other and have each other’s back in all situations.

Be accountable and hold others accountable with the intention to promote success and happiness.

Be vulnerable with each other with the intention of helping yourself and each other grow.

Express appreciation for the contributions of others.
